BESPOKE STAIRS

David Smith St Ives, a long-standing member of the British Woodworking Federation (BWF), has designed, manufactured and fitted bespoke oak stairs for a customer in Hitchin, Hertfordshire.

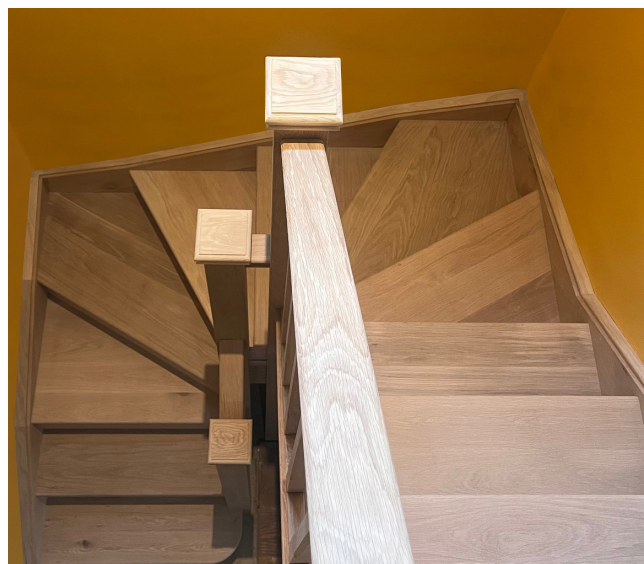

Enquiry

Discussions on the staircase first began when the client visited our stand at the London ExCeL Homebuilding and Renovating Show. The customer was looking to replace his existing timber staircase with an Oak staircase to modernise his home. He was looking for a company that could not only supply the new stairs but also remove and dispose of the old stairs and install the new ones. David Smith St Ives were more than capable to do all of this.

Design

The customer wasn't sure how much scope there was to make a significant change from the original design but asked if a 'fan'-type turn up the stairs would be possible. One of David Smith St Ives experienced Staircase Designers attended the site in-person to discuss and measure and ultimately designed a solution to achieve the client's vision. Our designer worked closely with the client to ensure the stairs were exactly as he wanted and would fit flush to his new flooring as well.

The staircase was designed in compliance with the BWF Domestic Stair Scheme, ensuring quality and safety in use, supported by the Scheme Design Guides.

Production, Delivery and Installation

The staircase was handcrafted by our expert craftsmen at our 100,000 sq. ft facility in St Ives, Cambridgeshire. They were delivered 100% on time, in full, and fitted by our approved fitting partner.

The new staircase was oak, with oak spindles, treads, risers, handrail, baserail, and engineered oak newel posts. The stairs were designed to a modern specification, with practical considerations as well. The upper flight features open risers allowing more light into the stairwell and creating the modern feeling the client desired. The lower flight features closed winders to keep the existing storage space underneath the staircase. The winder section of the stairs makes a full 'fan' turn, per the client's requirements.

"I was expecting my staircase to be good, but I'd certainly say that it exceeded my expectations, it is really beautiful!"

I was particularly impressed with the fitters who were polite, friendly and paid exceptional attention to detail!"
